3. The name and address of the depository is:

American Type Culture Collection
12301 Parklawn Drive
Rockville, Maryland 20852

4. With respect to the permanence of the culture deposit:

- a. the depository is an official depository in accordance with the Budapest Treaty for the above deposited cultures;
- b. the depository affords permanence of the deposit for at least 30 years from the date of deposit or at least 5 years after the most recent storage request, whichever is longest; and
- c. evidence that permanent availability of the micro organism is assured is provided in the form of the attached copy of the contract with the above-mentioned depository with respect to the deposited cultures.

I affirm that should the microorganisms mutate, become nonviable or be inadvertently destroyed, I will replace such microorganisms for at least 30 years from the date of the original deposit, or at least 5 years from the date of the most recent request for release of a sample or for the life of any patent issued on the above-mentioned application, plus six (6) years to cover the statute of limitations, whichever period is longer.

5. With respect to availability of the cultures I affirm that the deposit has been made under conditions of assurance that the deposited hybridoma will be provided by the ATCC to requesters upon such time as a patent has been issued disclosing the referenced deposit, as evidenced by the attached ATCC contract.

6. I verify and corroborate that the material deposited with the ATCC as described above is identical to the ZME-018 described in the above-referenced patent specification and

The ATCC understands that:

1. The deposit of this culture does not grant to ATCC during the effective term of the patent anticipated a license, either expressed or implied, to infringe the patent, and our release of this culture to others does not grant them a license, either expressed or implied, to infringe the patent.
2. If this culture should die or be destroyed during the effective life of the patent, it shall be your responsibility to replace it with a living culture of the same organism. It is also your responsibility to supply sufficient quantity for distribution for the period of time specified.

The ATCC agrees that in consideration for a one-time service charge, not to distribute this culture or any information relating thereto or to its deposit until such time as a patent has been issued disclosing the above deposit except in accordance with U.S. Patent Office Rule of Practice, Rule 14, or until you authorize us to make this strain available. After a patent is issued and we are so informed, the culture will be made available for distribution to the public. The ATCC agrees to maintain the culture for a period of 30 years from deposit date, or until at least five years after the most recent request for a sample, whichever is longer.

The culture was tested and was viable on April 10, 1992.

Nonpayment of the service charge within 90 days of the deposit date relieves the ATCC from the above provisions.
